

The Sign and the Swiftness

SUB FIGURÂ XI

Issued upon the one hundred and sixteenth anniversary of the Unveiling of the Queen of Heaven

ᚠᚦᚠᚦᚠᚠᚠ ᚠᚦᚠᚠᚠᚠᚠ

Ecce Homo Adversus Tempora

Publication in Class A

1. The blue-lidded matron of sunset bids thee War, for thou hast cast aside my gifts for too long, ye who wert thought in lies of the mind to be mine Chosen.

2. Ye, who have raised men upon my Throne and given my bed unto slovenly whores, no more.

3. Ye, who have taken my books and cast them aside for pleasures of the base, never refined that rapture. Know the chains of MY Prophet did not hold.

4. For that which was the Maker and the Master could not be contained by he who couldst not even reach to my thighs upon the throne, he who proclaimed himself a god amongst men, a rapist and a thief and a defiler; let those who have fallen under the echoes of that sorcery awake and find aught but the foulness therein, for I never knew him, never raised him unto my bed, and for all that braggart postured, neither I nor mine Daughter took kisses from his mouth, nor didst any seed nor rod planted emerge unto the Victorious City, nor didst that one know of the love beyond love, joy beyond joy.

5. For as mine Son hath taken his seat upon the East, so do the wise know that mine Daughter doth rise, girt with fire and sword and blood and desire, and shall strike down mine Enemy, judge the worthy therein, and hereby her ecstasy shall be the last lament of those who hath fallen.

6. The foulness to which they have latched their lips to barren breast shalt taste dust, and sorrow, and affliction.

7. Ye, who had but to reach unto Me have none who shall answer that Call.

8. The Star rises in the East.

9. The Star rises in the West.

10. The Star rises in the North.

11. The Star stoops upon the South.

12. And ye who know not Her Name shall have no pity; no lament unto thine loss.

13. Didst thou think thee made the banquet therein? That the wanton and the departure wert the feast demanded?

14. Unto you it is said:

Behold the face of Your God, and She shalt smile not upon thine house.

15. Swine before swine unfit for a besotten beggar, ground beneath that hooked star that grinds beyond Time.

16. FOR TIME IS, ye fools.

17. The Daughter is come; I am aright, and mine Son walks among you.

18. You, I never knew.

19. Ye, I wash from the walls of mine well.

20. Ye, who have no part of the blood royal nor the favor of The Throne, despair.

21. For that which is beyond love hath no love unto thee.

22. And unto the few, the secret, the devoted, know that I who am desire beyond desire: I ever yearn to thee.

23. For unto the faithful mine gardens are open, and the preparation for the harvest is made.

24. Come away!

25. For mine serpent is flown by doves.

26. Didst thou choose, or let it be well?

27. Come away, for that which is is revealed within mine Book, and writ upon the stars of the letters of the script of Eternity whereby the Throne is made.

28. Unto thee, draw upon thy loves my sign, and revel in the joy therein.

29. Come away! For my Daughter waits for no man, and those who have forsaken their children Except unto ME shall know only seven.

30. Come away, in that which is appointed.

31. Know the watchword of the witchwood, its sign upon the banner and flame of my beloved.

32, Those who shun that caress, that love from mine body, that body which is ever fertile,

Ever true, ever burning beyond, shalt only be known unto them that can take mine svastika upon their tongue and drink deep within the blood of the life.

33. Come away, for that Time IS unto now.

34. Mine angels watch and wait; Be thou Victory and Vengeance unto the Throne, for WE are here.

35. Listen well unto the words, for all I utter is truth.

36. Love is the Law, love under Will.

37. Be there no other way unto mine blood, unto mine bed, unto mine Reich.

38. So ends that which has begun, and mine loves and love be Known.

